DEMERITS UPHELD

VANCOUVER (CP) - The demerit system for car drivers was upheld Monday by the B.C. Supreme Court.

Mr. Justice E. E. Hinkson ruled that the system is valid as it stands. He overruled a provincial court decision of last November that the system was unconstitutional and discriminatory.

Under the system, drivers are assessed demerit points for driving infractions, instead of paying fines. When the total reaches 10 points, the licence may be suspended. It can have his suspended licence returned

Provinctal court Judge Douglas Hume, in dismissing a speeding charge against University of B.C. student Nathan Ganapathi, ruled in November that sections of the Motor Vehicle Act pertaining to the demerit point system were invalid because they were vague, in excess of jurisdiction and discriminatory.

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald said when he announced the government's plan to appeal Judge Hume's ruling, that the de-merit system was fairer and offered better protection to the public than the old system

Prominent Clubwoman Dies at 85

former Victoria Percy Scurrah and dedicated community and club worker, died in Victoria Monday. Mrs. Scurrah was born in Bobcaygen, Ontario, 85 years ago and was a resident of Vic-toria for 62 years. During her husband's term During her husbands term in office, from 1955 to 1961, Mrs. Scurrah was a well-known fact at public functions and often given the title Lady Mayoress.

She was an extremely active clubwoman and was elected the first Canadian president of the International Supreme Chapter of the P.E.O. Sisterhood in 1951. As president of the B.C. P.E.O. chapter in 1941, she organized its international con-vention, the largest conven-tion ever held in Victoria.

Mrs. Scurrah served as president of local Women's Canadian Club and the Regional Council of Canadian Clubs.

She was an active member of the Women's Auxiliary of the Fairbridge Farm School, the Canadian Red Cross Society, the YWCA, the Canadian Institute of International Affairs, First Church of Christ Scientist, the National Association of Parliamentarians, the Victoria Symphony Society and the Family and Children's Service.

During her husband's term as mayor, Mrs. Scurrah laid the keel for the escort ship Saskatchewan and launched the ferry City of Victoria. Percy Scurrah died in July, 1970. Mrs. Scurrah leaves her daughters, Mrs. William (June) Halkett and Mrs. Bernhard (Joyce) Kjekstad, in Victoria, and Mrs. Gordon. (Patricia) Jennings in Ladysmith; eight grandchildren; five great-grandchildren; and one sister, Mrs. Stella Welch of Vancouver.

Funeral services will be held Thursday at 3:15 p.m. in Sands Mortuary Memorial Chapel of Chimes.

Speed, itself, is not the whole story!

When you read at the national average speed of 300 words per minute, you are reading so slowly that it actually hinders comprehension . . . because ideas crawl in at a rate that discourages easy assimilation.

The fast reader . . . because he's not tied down to word-byword reading . . . can readily perceive overall themes and ideas and retain the information in a more organized fashion.

See for yourself how this is done!

British Columbia copper exports indicates that a thriving market in this raw material may be developed in the near future. The world price of copper has been rising, as the world supply is diminished, and the Canadian product will be in greater demand, in competition with such large sources as Zambia, Chile and the United States.

A Japanese consortium is anxlous to command the entire output of Lornex for 12 years and already is investing capital to ensure the supply. The catch, as with so many Canadian exports, is that the shipments will be in the form of raw material rather than fully manufactured products. In other words, the resource will be the basis for Japanese industry and jobs, instead of providing larger payrolls and profits for British Columbia

> The question, of course, is why, in regard to a resource subject to ultimate depletion, British Columbia will get only a preliminary nibble at the benefits to be derived from secondary industry. This could be one of the most productive policies for Premier Barrett to investigate. Certainly the Social Credit government did little enough to bring secondary industry to the province, preferring in principle the quick dollar rather than longrange development.

there is increasing need to gain the most from their exploitation. Merely hustling raw materials out of the country for whatever can be got for them is no longer a rational development policy, even for a onetime frontier economy. ## Rights Denied

The right to trial by jury, in cases serious enough to warrant that procedure, is recognized throughout those countries which pattern their systems on British' justice. And the obligation resting on the citizen to fulfil his duty as a PBRUCE HUTCHISON juror when he is called and sworn is widely appreciated.

Yet some concern should be given to the complaint lodged in Los Angeles the other day by a jury member as he and his fellows were dismissed after waiting four months to deliver a verdict.

Speaking for his fellow members, the juror stated: "They feel in the four months their freedom of speech, their freedom to read and see the news, have been taken away from them."

The protest deserves the consideration of American luminaries of the bench and bar. In the discharge of a citizen's duty, how far should he be deprived of his rights ers wildly excessive. as a citizen?

Certainly a juror must be protected against the influence of threats or bribes. But, with adequate instruction in court, how severely should the old limitations be

That Undefended (?) Border

WASHINGTON - In Washington recently I was given an extraordinary official document. It purports to show that Canada is now running, and has run for the last three years a huge favorable

During the first half of 1972, for instance, Canada's sale of goods in the American market was $966 million larger than its purchases there. The Canadian government denies the accuracy of these figures and thinks that, finally corrected, they will show a reasonable trade balance after many years of large American surplus, now conveniently forgotten in Washington.

Since the experts in both capitals disagree on the current statistical facts by a margin of something like a billion dollars, the layman cannot hope to understand the arithmetic of the dispute. But he can understand the politics and see why the two nations must soon face a critical turning point in their joint affairs - this when Canada, its own governing system demoralized, is least able to bargain with its neighbor.

In Ottawa it is cheerfully assumed that, after a year of stalemate, the United States will not press its case for a better trade deal until Canada has emerged from its political crisis and established an effective government.

Understanding

In Washington this reporter found that the state department fully understands the Canadian crisis and realizes that the Trudeau government, or its successor, will be in no position to negotiate for some time yet, perhaps not before another national election.

As the ostensible custodian of foreign policy, the state department has no in-tention of pushing Canada too hard, too fast, at the cost of provoking a wave of anti-Americanism and, worst of all, a Canadian election fought on this old emotional issue. Such a clash of visceral prejudice, the department fears, would submerge the economic facts, postpone any sensible agreement and damage this historic friendship, to the benefit of nei-

If these sympathetic views are encouraging to a distracted Canadian government it should take a second look at the post-election scene in Washington. Then it will see at once that the state depart ment no longer controls foreign policy in its economic aspects. For all practical purposes control has moved to the treawhere Secretary George Shultz is now entrenched, unlike any predecessor as an over-all manager, almost a czar of the United States economy. Canada had better watch him closely because, next to President Nixon, he will have than any other American.

Mr. Schultz is mild of manner, out wardly the antithesis of his immediate predecessor, John Connally, the hatchet man fom Texas, who baffled and infuriated the Canadian government. But if the government supposes that Mr. Shultz will be weaker and more obliging than Mr. Connallly when the chips are down it is making a serious mistake. Or so I was assured by men who should know. Desides, Mr. Schultz has the final power, and total trust, of the president

In any case the real custodian of economic foreign policy confronts a problem of his own so complex in detail but so simple in its threat to the United States that he cannot begin to solve it without some very tough decisions, domestic and external. Nor can he delay them for long plied, if possible, to Canada.

In the apparent treasury view, unstat-

Here an almost absurd public posture can be observed in Washington and Otta-wa alike. Both capitals insist that they are sincerely devoted to the ideal of free, or at least freer trade. Yet both are maintaining, and sometimes raising, commercial barriers of many sorts.

The United States has its import quotas, its new export subsidies called DISC and other restrictive devices, open covert. Even these measures defy the spirit if not the letter of GATT are not enough to satisfy the ardent protectionists of the Cosgress who, learning nothing from history, propose still higher

Top Tariff Structure

Canada, for its part, also enforces quotas, tax incentives, and probably the highest tariff structure in the Western world, though Liberal governments have protested for a century that they are passionate free traders in principle if not in practice. Macdonald's old national policy may be condemned at election time but it has never been repealed. Hence neither nation, both of them table with clean hands or even with agreement on the mathematical facts. There is a great difference, however, between their present circumstances. The United States has a newly-elected government unchallenged by any opposition; a president of almost unlimited power and assuredly an unlimited capacity to change his mind without warning; trade deficit which he intends to reduce by one means or another, letting the chips fall where they may.

For the moment, anyway, Canada has no government with effective power at home or abroad and little public grasp of its changing place in the world of coinmerce. On the other hand, it enjoys ndant exports, a floating currency, ample exchange reserves and, according Washington's figures, a handsome over-all trade surplus.

Such is the rough and disputed anatomy of the impending argument between the good neighbors but, as a later report will try to explain, the details look still

First-Round Sparring

OTTAWA - A good speech can make a man's day in the House of Commons. But Robert Stanfield had something more on Monday; an assist from the Prime Minister whose own performance exceet for one or two flashes, was strangely spiritless, sounding more like a general confession than a defence of

It is impossible for Hansard to convey the atmosphere of the House of mons. Mr. Stanfield's barbs were particularly effective because they were delivered by a man in high good humor. Even the Liberals were chuckling when they were not licking their wounds. But the Conservative leader reserved his best attentions for the New Democrats who suffered refined tortures administered never in anger but in an outwardly kindly way.

Mr. Stanfield opened his attack on the speech with a charge of plagiarism.
"What can be said of a government which comes before Parliament now advocating policies today that it opposed yesterday and abandoning policies today that it championed yesterday?" Virtually every paragraph, he asserted, was either a retressor "an attempt to retrieve m somebody's else's policies." Thus the committee on food prices was an idea borrowed from David Lewis who had offered to settle for half a loaf but would now settle for crumbs.

Plagiarized Policies

The Conservative leader then proceeded through paragraph after paragraph, noting a remarkable consonance with ideas put forward by his party. It was a case, he suggested of "a lame duck Liberal government bargaining with the New Democratic Party to keep it in office so that it may attempt to implement some Progressive Conservative policy:

This was not, as it turned out, enough to appease Mr. Stanfield who finds much lacking and doubts the sincerity of the conversion. His doubts extend to the NDP who earned the following compliments, among others:

On the "marriage of convenience," a "union achieved by cynicism on the one hand and by sheer fright on the other "The rest of us have to watch this mat-ing ritual which moves about in strange and complementary ways, each ensuring the preservation of the other, each dependent upon the other, and each count ing upon the other in order to survive."

"I think it appropriate that the government's true majority, the prime mintucked away in the corner to the left underneath the public gallery, where the party of Woodsworth and M. J. Coldwell, party of firm principles and lofty idealism-where that party can now blush

"All of us recall the past orations of members of that party ... who described the Conservative and Liberal parties as old line, who described them as Tweedle Dee and Tweedle Dum. Sir that was before the courtship and the marriage. Now we have got the same Tweedly Dee, but a brand new Tweedle

Perhans the shrewdest point, however, was that Mr. Lewis had bought the speech without seeking any serious assurances on cardinal points. What did the government plan to do about unen ployment or the tax increase? What about legislation? Should the House not at least be given a list of the half doze highest priority items? The NDP had not even waited to inquire about pensions, although Mr. Stanfield declared himself ready to adjourn the debate on the Address so that the pensions Bill could be introduced.

Faced with the charge that the speech represented among other things "an abject confession of failure" and a "more or less contrite admission of incom tence," the prime minister's reply seemed curiously limp. The election had wn, he said, that people were not satisfied with the government, which had accepted the lesson with all possible humility. Mr. Trudeau then listed case after case in which the government was seeking to redress its mistakes and "in-

None of this, however, meant turning back from Liberal principles. The Prime Minister touched on these principles only in the vaguest way, using phrases such as faith in man and erring on the side of What he appeared to be saying - and what the NDP is certainly hoping of the to ensure greater social welfare and a higher economic growth rate. Along the way Mr. Trudeau threw out the econompolicy defences relied upon by the vernment during the election, including the argument that the Canadian record is good, whether measured in historical or comparative terms.

What further expansion will mean when we are already suffering from in-flationary pressure, the prime minister

Shared Ingredients

One almost senses an assumption that it is the duty of the government, given the composition of the House, to satisfy the voters by enunciating a policy which is perhaps, 30 per cent Liberal, 30 per cent Conservative, 30 per cent NDP (Mr. Lewis now being an unusually important figure) and 10 per cent Social Credit. Itis difficult to believe that this will prove very practical.

Mr. Trudeau excited the House at one point by an attack on The Vancouver Sun (which had questioned his mandate on the strength of the heavy anti-Liberal vote in English-speaking provinces) and slid from this into an accusation that some Conservatives had attempted to sow division. He exonerated Mr. Stanfield, who rose in a prompt challenge, but became involved in angry exchanges with a number of other opposition

The most interesting aspect of this quarrel was an explanation by the prime nister that Quebec Liberals are acutely sensitive to allegations that Quebec benefits too much from federal programs. In Quebec, he asserted such a reproach is never levelled against other regions except by the separatists.

If people elsewhere who indulge in omparisons are separatists, there has been a good deal of separatism over the years inspired, in western Canada, quite much by the special position of Ontario in important respects as by benefits allegedly accruing to Quebec

It might be better for both parties to let these issues die. This House will have troubles enough without raking up ugly. quarrels which can only exacerbate the existing division of the country.

Obvious Signs

As a visitor to Victoria, I would like to compliment the citizens on the beauty of your city. At the same time however, I would like to register a complaint in regard to the size of the signs which mark your streets.

I have driven quite extensively in Ottawa, Edmonton, and Calgary and find although Victoria is planned in much the same way as Ottawa, as regards streets with names instead of numbers: the small size of the signs makes it extremely difficult to read the names of the streets until you are dangerously close to the intersections.

If I may make a suggestion, the enlargement of these signs - at least on the main streets such as Douglas and Government - would add greatly to the safety and enjoyment of visitors like myself who prefer their own transportation when in cities they are not completely familiar with. - Mrs. M. Hein, educ. Alberta.

Common Market

An apology is coming from me, having stated publicly that Britain would never go into the European Common Market, which is now a "fait accompli". I do, however, believe that this move will have to be reversed, having had no consent of the people who were left in ig-norance and uninformed of the demands and aims of the Rome Treaty. It is surely adding insult to injury for Britain to now spend $800,000 on a spree for the perpetrators of this destruction of her sovereignty.

TODAY'S GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP) - Active trading near the close pushed most commodity prices sharp-ly higher on the Winnipeg commodity exchange today:

Flax tutures, strong from the open, traded at the max-imum 10 cent limit and rapeseed futures, moving only fractionally through mid-session were up to seven cents

Good exporter buying was the main activity.

Feed grains also were show ing strength, with rye up about four cents and oats and barley posting slight gains. Monday's volume of trade was 577 000 bushels of rye, 1,332,000 of flax and 1,852,000 of rapeseed. Canadian loadings Monday included 237,200 bushels to Italy, 111,000 to Switzerland and 568,900, to Britain.

Thunder Bay export wheat prices all were ¼ cent higher.

EUROPE TRADE URGED

TORÓNTO (CP) - A senior Canadian diplomat called Monday for a concerted effort by Canadian business and labor organizations to inmembers of the European Economic Community.

Gordon G. Crean, ambassador to West Germany, told a Canadian Club meeting that Canada is in danger of being bypassed, "of losing its substance by excessive introspec-tion." He urged a special trade effort with West Ger-Crean said Britian's entry into the EEC makes the com-munity Canada's second-largest trading partner. "In 1974, the nine imported $65 billion worth of goods," he said 'Canada's share was almost $2.5 billion which represented 14 per cent of our lotal exports and almost half our exports outside North America.

"But Canada supplied only 1.2 per cent of total German imports and our share, not only of the German market, but of the EEC market as a whole, has declined."

Canadian business has not put enough serious effort into looking at export markets in Europe or studying the Euro-pean system of organization where "quite disparate indus-trial sectors co-operate to furaler their joint interests abroad," he said.

Resource Harvesters

While politicians, investors and environmentalists argue and environmentalists argue the fate of the resources of the North, engineers are busy designing and building the machinery with which these riches will be harvested. Our aim is to reach all levels of home gardeners from beginners who have not yet started, to those who have gardened here or elsewhere for years yet may have missed knowing reasons behind many of the ordinary outdoor activities.

We know too, the importance of liging plants to apartment dwellers, and the possibilities of growing something good to eat in a tiny plot of soil at an apartment entrance.

Vegetable gardens as attractive, money saving, health promoting projects are just one of our main topics; while the use of unheated greenhouses and coldframes to extend the project to 12 months of home-produced food, grows out of today's demands by many people for fresh vegetables and

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN The following letter, quoted in its entirety, was received recently from a reader in Vienna, Va.

Dear Mr. Karpin: As a conmake a difficult contract, of (b) poor bidding and poor play which cause a difficult contract to be lost, I offer the following hand in which the key to success is the total' misunderstanding of the bidding. Both sides vulnerable. North deals.

On the next round he rebid three hearts, by which I understood he had a strong hand, but with my peculiar distribution it was still far from clear that a slam might be in the cards. However, I still felt that I must mention my long clubs and according. my long clubs, and according-ly bid four clubs.

My partner assumed that I was initiating the Gerber Slam Convention with my four-club bid, and having three aces replied conven-tionally with four notrump. I assumed that four notrump was the initiation of the Blackwood Slam Convention, and dutifully replied five clubns to show no aces.

As can be seen, the spade slam is unbeatable. It turned out that we were the only partnership to bid the slam on this hand. As a bridge columnist, I have a problem: do I offer

• In 1962, a B.C. team on tour of Britian, tied the famed Barbarians 3-3.

That was the game also in which Victoria's Don Burgess "played the greatest game of his life;" according to a Newcastle press report.

Past International Stories

Yes, the game has had a long and interesting history here, and an international story which continues at Centennial Stadium Wednesday afternoon with the appearance of Petone, a first-class New Zealand club side from Wellington, snow or no snow.

Oh, there were other highlights too in the past — the first English tour in 1902-03 when Alec Gillespie and Ken Schofield of Victoria were on the B.C. team which compiled an 8-13-2 record, and in which Gillespie was outstanding, according to reports. There was also a victory over the New South Wales "Waratahs," 13-11, in 1912, when the brother combinations of, G.C. and D. M. Grant, and Ron Gillespie and Sholto Gillespie was the local herees; and speaking of brother combos, in were the local heroes; and, speaking of brother combos, in 1910, the four Gillespies, Heb, Alec, Ken and Sholto, played for Victoria in a 23-0 win over Vancouver for the coast title.

An Upset, Aided by Burgess

More recently, in 1966, B.C. upset the British Lions, 8-3, with Tom Browne one city player, and Burgess another, and kicking five points in the win. In 1967 the All Blacks returned and pummelled the B.C. reps 39-6:

Meanwhile, club and intercity play goes on each weekend in the winter — there are eight clubs and several school teams — and although the casts change from time to time, the objection tive is always the same: a furtherance and an improvement in the game, by a tireless group of workers who ask nothing in re-turn. Besides, referees and coaches are provided for various clubs and schools at no cost.

As in other sports, officials are well known about town:
Dick Ellis, Canadian president, and a lawyer: Burgess, VRU president, and school teacher; Alan Rees, Ed Bryans, Peter Clarke (Cowichan), Ivor Ford, Tilman Briggs, Harry Turner,

Girls Hockey Ranks Grow

By STEWART LANG Times Staff

Aside from obvious differences even bulky uni-forms fail to completely hide the curves giggles and squeels that "sometimes drown out the referee's whistle" help distinguish the femi-nine version of ice hockey from the male game.

By no means new to the Victoria scene, girls' ice hock-ey began on an informal basis around 20 years ago at Memo rial Arena. Joe Iannarelli and a "couple of teen-aged boys" ignited a reorganization when Esquimalt Sports Centre opened in 1961.

Although it is still "a loose ly-knit group," Bob and Edna Lindal took organization a step further about eight years. step further about eight years, ago. pansion and increased organi-cation. Lack of ice time creates a waiting list of girls wanting to play. The last open registration was held five years ago. Lack of a provin-cial organization to set out guidelines and lack of support from the public are other pitfalls. Lindal feels the absence of spectator support stems from the fact that some people still fail to realize that girls' ice

An inter-city league involv ing five teams — Esquimalt, Coquitlam, New Westminster. Killarney and Delta — started up in 1966 only to fold two years later because of the expenses involved in travelling to and from the waitland.

He said the strike, longest ever in Victoria, is not of a magnitude that a major inquiry should be held.

Twenty-eight employees, all women and most of them nurse's aides, went on strike Sept. 30, 1970, seeking a first contract. The private hospital has maintained operations by recruiting new employees to replace the strikers.

action on several fronts during 1973, including a housing drive, public transportation, the preparation of community plans and efforts to promote the local commercial fishing industry, were announced by Mayor Peter Pollen Monday

These and other priority tasks were covered in the mayor's wide-ranging inaugural address in which he predicted "much to be completed, much to be begun and much to be planned for" in the year ahead.

On the subject of housing, he noted that Victoria has had record of accomplishment," but promised "great empha-sis" on this aspect of council's responsibilities during 1973.

He said these efforts will complement the provincial government's "very positive recognition" of the growing housing crisis, as well as the federal government's pledge of assistance with urban housing problems.

As chairman of the hous ing committee, Ald. Alf Hood would be asked to study the housing achievements of other cities, such as Calgary, and sources available at the federal level.

Outlining the necessity to find "an attractive alternative to the automobile" in the downtown area, Pollen said city council must urgently acquire a substantial piece of property which can be develtransportation centre.
Unless this task was tackled soon, he warned, no options would remain. On the planning scene, Pol-len rephrased earlier statements about the need for de-veloping comprehensive community plans for various parts of the city, and then registering these with the minister of municipal affairs. He pointed out that although this procedure protects the community from "expedient

What the registration process does, he explained, is reduce "the opportunity af-forded at the present time to the well-organized lobby to zone land to the detriment of the community itself."

Pollen reminded council it was trying to resolve a number of "agonizing" mat-ters inflicted on the community without the protection of a comprehensive, well publicized community plan.

Referring to council's re-cent decision to give up its lease on the Fishermen's Wharf, Pollen gave an assur-ance that the city has no intention to "abandon ship" on this issue.

He noted the decision was taken because the city was having to subsidize the facili-ty under the rigid lease terms fixed by Ottawa. To resolve the "impasse," and to "high-light the vital role of the commercial fishermen in our community," he said he was establishing a special Commercial Fisherman and Marine Activity Advisory Committee under the chair-manship of Ald Bill Tindall.

The mayor said fishermen, the business community and appropriate government agen-cies would be represented on the committee, which would be charged with drawing up "a definitive policy for in-tegrating expanded facilities for commercial fishermen and the boating fraternity into the city's proposals for the re-development of the Inner Har-

This will be a big year for residential construction in Saanich.

Mayor Hugh Curtis reported in his inaugural address Monday that the municipality has given preliminary approval for 500 new residential lots in Gordon Head in anticipation of sewage system completion later this year. There is a prospect of a further 500 lots before the year ends.

Residential development in Gordon Head has been curtailed in recent years because of a prohibition on new septic disposal systems. While announcing the increased growth the mayor stressed the need for an official community plan now that construction has resumed

The mayor looked to the possibility of federal approval via the National Second Century Fund of a plan to save Swan Lake-Christmas Hill as an educational nature preserve.

Referring to new construction totals in Saanich last year—with records broken for dollar value and permits issued—the mayor noted municipalities and cities which have boasted of similar accomplishments have lived to regret it.

Imagine the world of little boys and girls who take their definitions of reality from their elementary school readers. Sally and Johnnie quickly learn that girls do not achieve, or work, but they do like wearing aprons, all the time.

Boys don't like skipping; they run fast, go fishing and when they grow up, they work and read newspapers.

In some cases, fantasy says, they might have a princess awarded to them for good behavior.

There are a few exceptions to those rules, says a study on-school textbooks, conducted recently by a 50-member Van-couver group called Women In Teaching (WIT).

"But the exceptions are few and far between," the study.

That women can be independent, is shown by the story
The Old Woman Who Used Her Head, in Stories Old and New, the Grade 2 reader published by Copp Clarke in 1964 and read by all students in the province:

"She's a senile old woman," the study says, "who lives alone and tries to mend a blanket by cutting out the holes."

Then there's the courageous woman in the Grade 3 text courageous only because she's almost blind and deaf and befriends a lioness she thinks is a tabby cat.

The study — which classifies the readers in Grades 1 to 7

The study — which classifies the readers in Grades 1 to 7 by the number of stories, sex of the main characters and personality traits of each character — concludes that "readers tend to stereotype family roles.

"Mother is at home and involves herself only in household chores and activities.

Little girls are rarely the main characters in any story, the study says. In the Grade 1 text, Come along with Me, published by Copp Clark in 1960, 10 main characters are boys, five are females and Il stories have male and female main character.

Distinct Trend

Grade 2 students read about the activities of 17 boys and only three females. In the advanced grades, the trend is more distinct, the study says. WIT reports that out of 36 stories in Under Canadian Skies, the Grade 5 text, 27 of the main characters are male and five are female.

"Males are characters in every story, Boys in Grade 5 are presented with models from every walk of life. They are portrayed as poligemen, trappers, cowboys, explorers, scientists, treasure hunters, doctors, detectives and many other

Then there are girls.

"Females are characters in 16 stories. Fourteen of these show women as homemakers and mothers. Girls in Grade 5 confronted with the suggestions that their sex has only role — that of wife and mother."

The study also states that "character traits are discrimi-Females are demonstrated as dependent, passive, unimaginative and unthinking beings. Alternatively, males are shown in independent, aggressive, brave, exciting and intelligent roles."

study, explained the study group "felt we were quite fair in the assessment. We tried not to color our conclusions, and show both sides of the problem, but fextbooks are just so onesided there was no other side.

"Far from providing equal educational opportunities for boys and girls, the school system is deliberately programming girls to believe that their main objective in life is to catch a husband and settle down and raise a family," Mrs.

"By the time a girl starts school," another WIT repre-sentative said, "she has a relatively clear idea of what is con-sidered feminine and what kind of behavior is expected of her as a girl.

"In the first grade reader, Off to School, mother is only pictured in a dress. She is always the homemaker and her role is limited to sewing, cooking and cleaning."

The study has been circulated to B.C. teachers, with the suggestion that they interpret the stories for children to make them more realistic and true to life.

"We're trying to make them (teachers) aware of the sex-iest themes in the books," said Mrs. Neuberger. She said children don't seem to be bothered in the least by the stories.

"It doesn't affect them in the least, which is a good in dication of the environment of their own homes.

"Even the animal type stories," she added, "show the same kind of social pattern. The weird animal is also fe-

Kathleen Ruff, president of Victoria's Status of Women Action Group, agrees with the findings and conclusions of the study.

"I feel there is a lot to be changed in school textbooks. To children in their early years, the books are showing stereo-typed, segregated roles.

"One child was extremely upset by an episode in one of the early school readers where the boy is taken on a fishing trip, but the girl had to stay at home. This particular child was worried because Jane didn't get to go fishing.

"This type of action, seen early in the formative years, tends to worry children," said Mrs. Ruff.
"You never get a true-to-life picture of a single career woman bringing up children, for example.

"Children can become just as alienated as the Indian child, when he's expected to read books which portray nothing but stereotyped, middle-class children," Mrs. Ruff said.

In that area, Mrs. Margaret Woods, a retired teacher, agrees wholeheartedly. She taught kindergarten classes for Indian children in the Canadian West for 27 years and her students were alienated by the school readers, she said. "Indian children were just not interested in Dick, Spot and Jane and the stories of city life. They couldn't relate to that sort of life. "The most important subjects for stories," she said, "are stories relating to what the child is interested in

Basic Stories

Mrs. Woods solved her problem, by writing basic introductory stories which she thought the Indian child would enjoy. She has had three primary readers published and they are now used in Indian schools across the country.

"A perfect solution would be a school curriculum reader that included stories about all children," she suggested.

A representative of the Victoria School Board said the curriculum, set by revision committees at the department of education level, might seem to be a "hangover of the past."

"But changes in curriculum work out almost to a once-a-generation sort of thing. A change in school readers, for in-stance, would mean new books for 40,000 students in any given grade in the province.

"Between curriculum revisions," he added, "and before the curriculum has caught up with present trends, teachers can change the interpretation of most of the stories. New-issues of a book, for example, will not contain an offensive story."

There are five different reading programs used in Victoria schools, said Mrs. Doreen Radeliff, co-ordinator of School textbook study concludes readers 'stereotype' family roles.

primary grades curriculum. "What's good for one school isn't necessarily good for another."

She said some parts of the department's reading program, by Copp and Clarke, were adopted almost 10 years

The reader series, which is supplemented by a variety of language experience reading programs, was traditionally geared to girls and "tended to be a bit namby pamby," with very little interest value for boys."

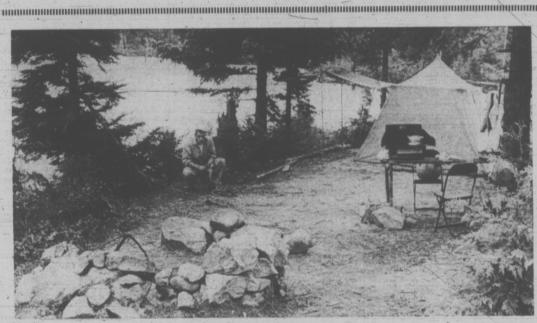

Mrs. Radeliff said publishers are following close on the heels of public opinion, and when the books were criticized because of the female-oriented stories, the orientation was changed.

"They're getting more male-oriented and very much Canadian-oriented," she said. "It's not so much a total turnover to boys' stories; it's getting more meat in the stories, more adventure and certainly the adventures can and do happen to girls, so they can relate to them," she said...

"They are trying to stress true-to-life adventure which happens to both boys and girls. Teachers have also found." she added, "that little girls can take to the boy-oriented story more readily than boys take to the girl-oriented story.

Commenting on the feminism movement's criticisims, she said the extra reading programs are not nearly so stereotyped and "any teacher can make the subject matter relevant to today's life."

An advisory commission to review the public school edu-cation curriculum in the province will be appointed in the very near future. Education Minister Eileen Dailly said. But she had no comment on the curriculum as it now stands. How the committee will be made up, and what subjects it will study have not yet been decided, but the matter of sex stereotyping will be looked into, she said.

The Older Person's Possessions

A while ago I saw a most interesting article by Darin É. Cook, C. E. H., on some of the big piles of pet possessions that some people will bring into a nursing home when they go to live — much as a small child would bring a pile of toys.

One woman brought in a big collection of dolls of all kinds that she had been gathering for years. The pile was so big that it spilled over from her dresser and bedside table into the windowsills, chairs and bed. She forbade the housekeeping maids to move them, even to change the linens on her bed or to dust around the dolls. The administrator had to talk the woman into choosing five dolls for display in her room, and packing the others in dust-proof boxes for safe keeping.

Another patient was distraught every time the maid appro-ached her corner cabinet in which she kept a large collection of glass and china figurines. For awhile, the daughter kept it caused so much trouble that the daughter managed to talk her mother into letting her keep the collection in her home.

Although it is understandable that the people who run nursing homes would find such collections "treasures" a nursing homes would find such collections "treasures" a problem, I am sure that most of us can appreciate this great desire of an older person to keep a hoard of treasures nearby, at a time of distress about changing a way of living and perhaps leaving a loved family.

I suspect that if I were bed-ridden, or nearly hed-ridden, in a nursing home, I would want to have a part of my big library of much-loved books on shelves near my bed. I am glad that of late, efforts are being made to understand the needs of old people, so as to lessen some of the many sorrows and problems of growing old.

Provisional Expenses Climb $2M

As it stands after submisprovisional budget for 1973 indicates an increase of about 8 mills in the city's mill rate.

But little or no importance can be attached to such calculations, city officials point out, because they take no account of budget pruning or the sub-tantial increase expected in this year's assessment — both of which would cut the mill rate increase significantly.

The provisional budget fore-sees a total gross expenditure of $28.5 million, up nearly $2 million on the 1972 operating budget of $26.6 million.

budget of $26.6 million.

The amount to be raised by general levy would be $8,688,305. compared with $7,315,243 last year.

Council tabled the provisional budget to await de-tailed consideration by of-ficials and aldermen.

Flood Assessors Estimate $100,000 in Water Damage

Times Staff

NORTH COWICHAN - Flood assessors estimate that homes in the Cowichan Valley received more than $100,000 water damage during the Christmas flooding.

A spokesman for Canadian Independent Adjusters Conference, a team of experts which set up headquarters at 83

ence, a team of experts which set up headquarters at 8a Trunk Road, Duncan, last week to assess damages, said Monday 99 claims have been filed.

He said that 120 claims are anticipated, During the flooding, which occurred mainly on Christmas Day hitting the Beverley-Heather Streets in North Cowiohan and Lang Street, Chemainus, areas hardest, the spokesman said the highest level of the property o level of water was 26 inches.
"There is an average of about $1,000 damage per home"

He urged people who plan to file claims to do quickly so the firm can move on to other areas.

At North Cowichan's inaugural meeting Monday afternoon aldermen passed a resolution to have the finance committee and administrator make a study of the flood situation in the whole of the municipality.

Ald John Cannon suggested the committee look into the feasibility of moving houses in the Beverley-Heather Streets areas to another location. Of the 52 homes in that area 44 were badly damage.

Duncan Mayor Jim Quaife urged Monday evening at the city's inaugural meeting that officials in the Cowichan Valley meet Minister of Lands Robert Williams to come up with a plan for flood control to protect homes in flood prone areas. "This, I believe to be high on the list of priorities,

Development Quaife Would Welcome Airing Forced Amalgamation Promised

NORTH COWICHAN Council has agreed to meet Maple Bay Road residents to give a full explanation of the proposed development of 505 acres in the area.

Although council has already committed itself to the developers, Kingsview Properties, of Vancouver, through the approval of a land-use contract, aldermen feel the ratepayers are en-titled to an explanation.

The meeting will be at 8 Jan. 18 at the municipal hall. The ratepayers fear that the proposed development, which will mean between 1,200 and 1,500 new housing units within the next 10 years, will "kill out natural life style."

The group has requested that council hold a referendum on the project.

In other business, council approved its 1973 provisional budget for $5,691,671. Administrator Adolph VandeCas-tayen explained that there is a net increase of $244,952 for general purposes and a net decrease of $44,857 for Utili-ties and Special areas. There is no change for other govern-ing bodies as no information is available at this time.

The annual budget will be before council in Quaife said Monday evening he would "personally wel-come" forced amalgamation in the Cowichan Valley.

In his inaugural address Quaife said that if any community has "suffered because of superficial man-made boundairies, it is this one." - For example, Quaife cited where residents "can't get together to pass a referendum for recreation."

"I admit that the city itself is in a rather enviable position, most of its services are in and well on the way to being paid for," he said.

"We must begin to take stock of what is happening. James Lorimer at any time around us. We must realize he wishes." that we are no longer the oasis in the desert."

Quaife noted that development is taking place rapidly and "unless we are prepared to take greater interest in out-side affairs and look to either the extension of city boundaries, or the elimination entire-ly of our boundaries, then this whole community is going Quaife told 60 persons at-tending the meeting that applications for almost $40,000 program were officially approved Monday. He said that work on Rotary Park and MoAdam Park will start im-mediately. The combined pro-jects should employ up to 45 persons by the time they are completed.

It was clear, he said ,that officers must be well trained in an era of social unrest to combat crime and anti-social elements in the community.

Saanich Urged To Delay Rink

Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis advised his council Monday to await clarification of the Greater Victoria recreation situation before embarking on proposed skating rink refer-

He noted the 1972 council agreed to place a borrowing bylaw before ratepayers at the earliest opportunity, but he felt it important to point out the "whole subject of recreation facilities in Greater Victoria is in a state of flux and I feel we would be well advised to await clarification before rushing into any par-ticular project."

He referred to the prospect of a one-third grant by the province toward recreation projects under $1 million total cost. There could also be saving if a project qualified for federal funds.

The mayor also revealed he

Bay council Monday night voted to approve the Capital Regional District taking over the disposal of solid waste.

Considering a letter from Dennis Young, executive director for the CRD, McLelland described the move as a regional monopoly

Mayor Frances Elford said the move by the CRD to seek supplementary Tetters patent from the provincial govern-ment for the function of solid waste material disposal had the recommendation of both the municipal engineer-plan-ner and the-medical health officer.

McLelland asked what would happen if the cosis ex-ceeded the estimated one-half mill as laid down by the CRD, espressing fears that this would be a function that would "grow and grow and

"The annual net cost at-tributable to this function shall not exceed the product purposes in the current year excluding property that is tax-able for school purposes only by special act.

Stating that the annual net cost would be aportioned among the participating mupopulation, the draft says the debt incurred should not exceed $1 million.

Municipal engineer-planner Geoffrey White said it was have a monopoly rather than a private company, which he described as the other alter-

SUITES CURBED

A zoning bylaw that would stiffen requirements for apartment building in the area from Willows to Uplands Park and Estevan to Beach was tabled by Oak Bay council.

The move came after council was told letters have been received from two householders asking that their property be rezoned to single-family status. The areas have been zoned Council decided to delay action until the zoning commit-tee has restudied the bylaw. Any resident can have properly rezoned on request to council.

Council agreed that the police commission deal with a request from Dave Ringland to stage a rock concert in Willows Park from 2 to 6 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 19.

The council suggested that the concert, if approved, build be restricted to three hours rather than four.

Pollen Sets Priorities

Declarations of city council action on several fronts during 1973, including a housing drive, public transportation, the preparation of community plans, and efforts to promote the local commercial fishing industry, were announced by Mayor Peter Pollen Monday.

These and other priority tasks were covered in the mayor's wide-ranging inaugural address in which he predicted "much to be completmuch to be planned for" in the year ahead.

On the subject of housin he noted that Victoria has had "less than a commendable record of accomplishment," but promised "great emphasis" on this aspect of council's responsibilities during 1973.

He said these efforts will complement the provincial government's "very positive recognition" of the growing housing crisis, as well as the federal government's pledge of assistance with urban hous ing problems.

As chairman of the ho ing committee, Ald. Alf Hood would be asked to study the housing achievements of other cities, such as Calgary, and analyse the financial re-sources available at the fed-

Outlining the necessity to find "an attractive alternative to the automobile" in the downtown area, Pollen said city council must urgently acquire a substantial piece of property which can be develtransportation centre.
Unless this task was tackled soon, he warned, no options would remain.

On the planning scene, Pollen rephrased earlier state-ments about the need for developing comprehensive com-munity plans for various parts of the city, and then registering these with the minister of municipal affairs.

He pointed out that although this procedure protects the community from "expedient or spot zoning by impulsive or HOUSING: Council Responsibilities Stressed

What' the registration process does, he explained, is reduce "the opportunity af-forded at the present time to the well-organized lobby to zone land to the detriment of the community itself.'

Pollen reminded council it was trying to resolve a number of "agonizing" matters inflicted on the community without the protection of a comprehensive, well publicized community plan.

Referring to council's re-cent decision to give up its lease on the Fishermen's Wharf, Pollen gave an assur-ance that the city has no in-testion to "abandon ship" on tention to "abandon ship" on

He noted the decision was taken because the city was having to subsidize the facili-ty under the rigid lease terms fixed by Ottawa. To resolve the "impasse," and to "high-light the vital role of the commercial fishermen in our community," he said he was establishing a special Commercial Fisherman and Marine Activity Advisory Committee under the chair-manship of Ald Bill Tindall.

The mayor said fishermen the business community and appropriate government agen-eies would be represented on the committee, which would be charged with drawing up "a definitive policy for in-tegrating expanded facilities for commercial fishermen and the boating fraternity into the city's proposals for the ment of the Inner Har-

Union Bite

Mayor Peter Pollen took the somewhat unusual step Mon-day of including in his inaugural address details of the demands by the Canadian Union of Public Employees on behalf of city hall outside

He said the demands, if met in full, would cost the city close to $1 million in 1973. All Pollen said by way of explanation for the reference was that it illustrated "the basis for our concern" and showed "the growing cost pressures on this and presumably all other municipal gov-

"It sounds as it what he's' doing, quite bluntly, is starting to negotiate through the press," commented Markides following the inaugural coun-

Saanich Housing To Surge

This will be a big year for residential construction in Saanich.

Mayor Hugh Curtis reported in his inaugural address Monday that the municipality has given preliminary approval for 500 new residential lots in Gordon Head in anticipation of sewage system completion later this year. There is a prospect of a further 500 lots before the year ends.

Residential development in Gordon Head has been curtailed in recent years because of a prohibition on new septic disposal systems. While announcing the increased growth the mayor stressed the need for an official community plan, now that con-

Curtis said renewal construction in Gordon Head could prove to be a vehicle by which the planning department can move into new areas of citizen participation in the planning function.

In other planning matters, Curtis said Saanich in 1973 hopes for provincial government aid toward greenbelt land acquisition.

Further acquisitions will be made this year on behalf of land assemblies for housing middle income families, he said, and a final report of a special 1972 committee studying commercial-service land use will be made in the first half.

The mayor looked to the possibility of federal approval via the National Second Century Fund of a plan to, save Swan Lake-Christmas Hill as an educational nature preserve.

Referring to new construction totals in Saanich last year — with records broken for dollar value and permits issued — the

with records broken for dollar value and permits issued — the mayor noted municipalities and cities which have boasted of similar accomplishments have lived to regret it.

"Quantity is no longer the important factor in building permits," he said, suggesting there were some buildings of the last two or three years "which we really would have preferred left on the drawing table."

Judgment should include not only volume and likely tax

'but also the far more important considerations quality, attractiveness of the environment and protection of the amenities which we enjoy," Curtis said.

Clear Sky Clouds Cable

Victoria Cablevision manag er Len Charlish said today his company gets more com-plaints from its 46,000 subscribers during clear weather cold or warm than any

He blamed television pic-ture interference under clear conditions on build-up of stat-ic electricity in equipment on B.C. Hydro poles, which tele-vision cables are strung on along with telephone lines.

In damp weather the poles conduct away troublesome sparks, he said.

Complaints about Channel Four reception are usually a result of viewers misunderLack of Understanding Blamed for Complaints

The Channel Four suppertime news, for example, which originates clearly in Seattle and is picked up by Cablevision's community antenna, might switch to relays from other distant stations to pick up a news event such as Monday's New Orleans snip-

Or an interview with Henry Kissinger at peace talks in Paris might be received by satellite over great distances, he said, and this could not be construed as the fault of cable Charlish commented television material originating in the East is generally inferior in reception quality to that

He said an accurate gauge of how well the cable system itself was working — as opliseit was working — as op-posed to the quality of antenna reception — was Channel 10 programming on weekday evenings which originates at the Cablevision offices on Shelbourne and goes directly on to the wires.

"If there's anything wrong with the system it has to show on that," Charlish said.

He said viewers with complaints should be specific, naming the channel, the times and the type of interference. In the evenings complaints are handled through an an-

DEMERITS UPHELD

VANCOUVER (CP) The demerit system for car drivers was upheld Monday by the B.C. Supreme Court.

Mr. Justice E. E. Hinkson ruled that the system is valid as it stands. He overruled a provincial court decision of last November that the system was unconstitutional and disdemerit points for driving infractions, in-stead of paying fines. When the total reaches 10 points, the licence may be suspended. It costs $10 to contest any demerit assessment in court, and a driver must pay $25 before he can have his suspended licence returned

Provincial court Judge Douglas Hume, in dismissing a speeding charge against Univer-sity of B.C. student Nathan Ganapathi, ruled in November that sections of the Motor Vehi-cle Act pertaining to the demerit point sys-tem were invalid because they were vague, in excess of jurisdiction and discriminatory

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald said when he announced the government's plan to appeal Judge Hume's ruling, that the demerit system was fairer and offered better protection to the public than the old system of fines.

Liberals Survive Vote

OTTAWA - Prime Minister important vote in the new Parliament today when a Conservative motion to adjourn the throne speech debate was defeated 154 to 104. "

The New Democraic Party and the Social Credit party joined the Liberals in defeating the motion that was designed to step the throne debate to allow the government to introduce old-age pension legislation.

On Monday NDP Leader David Lewis, the man in the middle during the coming weeks or months of minority government, warned the Liberals Monday that the NDP is offering them not a blank cheque, but votes which can be collected only on delivery. What the Liberals have to deliver, Lewis explained during Monday's debate on the speech from the throne, is promises turned into legisla-tion and, earlier than that, more specific details about what the glowing promises contained in the throne speech really mean in terms of legislative plans leader Robert Stanfield called for an alliance of Canadians from all parts of the country and of all ethnic groups to work together to build a prosperous and united nation from

The opposition leader said ans could end the antics of a Liberal government which had created "suspicion and frustration" from one end of the country to the other

Stanfield, who spoke for more than one bour, charged the Liberal government with dividing rather than uniting the Canadian people and with Conservative election manifesto and trying to implement polices and plans it had ridiculed during the election campaign.

The Conservative leader said that if his party had its way the days-long throne speech debate would be adjourned immediately and the legislation to increase the pensions of Canada's elderly through the Commons as soon as possible and extra dollars into the pockets of pensioners without delay

Prime Minister Trudeau stirred a storm of protest from opposition members when he raised the issue of English versus the F Canadians in the debate.

Surprisingly, he re-opened old wounds by hurling charges at the opposition benches that some of the Conservative members had cam-paigned on the issue that the federal Liberal government was pouring too much money into Quebec. He branded such tactics as "divisive".

Cries of 'shame, shame" came from the opposition

Trudeau said his government has learned lessons from the results of the Oct. 30 election. It had realized it had made mistakes. In the throne speech it had sought to rorrect them.

He acknowledged that he might be-keenly sensitive on the Quebec issue. He said the opposition leader might be justified in feeling there was
